TOM PAINE,
Invited to this country by his Right Worthy and affectionate Friend, T. JEFFERSON.

No. 7.

At the time when the federal constitution was under discussion in the different states, Mr. Jefferson resided in France. In a series of letters to a friend in this country he expressed his sentiments upon this constitution—These letters were never published entire, nor were his objections ever fully made known. Some general rumors, had, however, gotten abroad, of Mr. Jefferson's hostility to some of the important principles of the constitution and were made use of in the convention of Virginia as an argument for rejecting the constitution.
In the year 1792, after Mr. Jefferson's return to America, it became convenient to him to be supposed a friend to the federal constitution. At this time, partial extracts from those letters were made, by a particular friend of Mr. Jefferson, and published for the express purpose of establishing his federalism. If it be conceded, therefore, that these extracts were made without mutilation or alteration, it will certainly be rational to conclude, that no passages would be published which would be likely to prove the very contrary of what was wished, and that such objections only as had already partially escaped would at this time be laid before the public.

With this view of the subject, we proceed to consider some of those extracts, and to examine whether they establish the position which they were designed to support.

In a letter dated at Paris, 20th Dec.
1787, after expressing his approbation of some parts of the constitution of subordinate importance, to which none ever objected, Mr. Jefferson says—

"I will now add what I do not like:
First, the omission of a Bill of Rights, &c. &c. The second feature I dislike and greatly dislike, is the abandonment, in every instance, of the necessity of rotation in office, and most particularly in the case of the PRESIDENT. Smaller objections are, the appeal in fact as well as law, and the binding all persons, legislative, executive, and judicial, by oath to maintain that constitution. I do not pretend to decide what would be the best method of procuring the establishment of the manifold good things in this constitution, and getting rid of the BAD. Whether of adopting it in hopes of future amendment, or, after it has been duly weighed and canvassed by the people, after seeing the parts they generally dislike, and those they generally approve, to say to them, We see now what you wish; send together your deputies again; let them frame a constitution for you, omitting what you have condemned, and establishing the powers you approved. Even these will be a great addition to the energy of your government."

In a subsequent letter, dated 6th July, 1788, he says—

"I am glad to hear the new constitution is received with favor. I sincerely wish, that the nine first conventions may receive, and the four last reject it; the former will secure it finally, while the latter will OBLIGE them to offer a declaration of rights, in order to complete the union."

In another of the 18th November, 1788,
he says—

"As to the bill of rights, I still think it should be added, and I am glad to see that three States have at length considered the perpetual re-eligibility of the President as an article which should be amended."

It appears from the debates in the convention of Virginia, that Patrick Henry, at that time the champion of the anti federal party in Virginia, quoted Mr. Jefferson's opinion as an AUTHORITY for rejecting the constitution. Mr. Pendleton attempted to explain away Mr.
Jefferson's opinion: He stated it to be only a wish that the "first nine conventions might accept the constitution, because it would secure the good it contained, and that the four last might refuse to accept it till they COMPELLED the others to accept certain amendments." Mr.
Henry replied:

"The gentleman has endeavoured to explain Mr. Jefferson's opinion into an advise to a dopt. He wishes nine states to adopt, and that four states may be found somewhere to reject it. Now if we pursue his advice, what are we to do?

To prefer form to substance? for give me leave to ask what is the SUBSTANCE.
AL PART of his council? It is that FOUR states should REJECT: they tell us that from the most authentic accounts, New-Hampshire will adopt it; where then will four states be found to reject, if we adopt it?"

Mr. Madison said in reply to this:
"Is it came to this then that we are not to follow our own reason? Is it proper to adduce the opinions of respectable men not within these walls? If the opinion of an important character were to weigh on this occasion, could we not adduce a character equally great on our SIDE? Are we who (in the gentleman's opinion) are not to be guided by an erring world now to submit to the OPINION of a citizen beyond the Atlantic!—I wish his name had never been mentioned; I wish every thing spoken here, relative to his opinion, may be SUPPRESS-ED, if our debates should be published.
I am in some measure acquainted with his sentiments on this subject; it is not right for me to UNFOLD what he has informed me, but, I will venture to assert, that the clause now discussed is not objected to by him."

Thus it fully appears, that Mr. Madison, who had been made acquainted with Mr. Jefferson's sentiments upon this subject considered him as generally NOT ON OUR SIDE, tho' he had made no objection to the particular clause then under consideration.

In a very able production, published in 1796*, may be found the following comments upon the foregoing documents. "It is observable, that Mr. Madison neither advocates the accuracy of Mr. Pendleton's comment, nor denies the justice of that of Mr. Henry: His solicitude appears to be to destroy the INFLUENCE of what he impliedly admits to be the opinion of Mr. Jefferson, to press out of sight the authority of that opinion, and to get rid of the subject as soon as possible." In the 45th page of the same work are the following comments.—"We have seen the first advice given by Mr. Jefferson to the people of Virginia; relative to the constitution, was not to adopt it, but to try a second convention; his subsequent advice was to adopt it or not on a CONTINGEN-CY, that is, to adopt if nine states had not previously adopted; in other words, to risk an ULTIMATE DISMEMBERMENT of the states in an experiment to obtain the alterations which HE deemed necessary."

to the Presidency examined." Page 44.

SALEM, October 7.
Arrived, schooner Hazard John Norris, Jun. master, from Port Royale, (Martinique).
Sailed from thence on the 14th of Sept. last, on which day the French took possession of said island.—The fleet consisted of the Commodore's ship, 74 guns, 2 frigates, one transport, and 2 schooners.
They landed their troops and took possession, without any disturbance or opposition, constantly firing from the Ships and Forts. The inhabitants appeared to be rejoiced on the occasion. Left there the brig Jane, Dogget, of Boston, to sail the next day; brig Bee, Woodman, of New-buryport, to sail in ten or twelve days, and a number of southern vessels lying there, their cargoes not being sold. Sailed in company with the brig John, Cozins, of Rhode-Island; likewise, the schooner Grank Turk, Valentine, of do. The English fleet left the island on the 15th Sept. for Barbadoes, St. Kitts, and other English Islands. Capt. Norris lost one man in St. Lucia, by the name of Collins Merrill, belonging to Delaware.

BOSTON, October 11.
BOSTON FRIGATE.

The United States frigate Boston, Daniel M'Neil, esq. commander, anchored yesterday off Fort Independence, in 30 days from Gibraltar. Dispatches from government having been delivered to Capt. M'Neil immediately on his arrival the frigate will proceed without delay to Washington. We learn from Capt.
M'Neil that a partial peace has been effected, by Commodore Morris with the Moors; and that Mr. Simpson had returned to Tangiers; that the Emperor of Morocco had claimed and manned the Tripolitan vessel, which has been so long dismantled at Gibraltar, and fitted her for sea; in consequence of which, Commodore Morris had ordered the Adams, Capt. Campbell, to cruise off Algeziras, to watch her motions; and stationed an officer on shore to make signals; that Com. Morris had sailed from Gibraltar with Mr. Cathcart on board, for Algiers.

Capt. M'Neil, after having been relieved off Tripoli, by the Constellation, captain Murray, proceeded to Naples, where he conveyed a number of American and Swedish vessels down the Mediterranean.
Capt. M'Neil had a slight engagement, near Tripoli, with three gunboats, one of which he sunk—the other two made off; in this engagement the Boston suffered no loss. The Danes had paid a tribute in money and military stores to the Regency of Tripoli. The crew of the Boston has been very healthy through their whole cruise, and now are.

COMMERCIAL.

A letter from Bombay, of May 29, received by a mercantile gentleman in this town, contains the following intelligence: —Our prospects here are not the best. owing to the following circumstances; in consequence of the high price of Cotton last year, the purchasers of that article for the European and China markets, came to a resolution, and bound themselves in a heavy penalty, not to pay more than 185 rupees the Surat Candy of 714 lbs. Those merchants being in possession of all the screws in Bombay, declared that any man who paid higher for the Cotton, should not have it screwed; and the holders of the Cotton being very wealthy men, are determined not to sell under last years price, which was from 140 to 145 rupees the candy. In consequence of the above combination, several ships have been obliged to load with unscrew'd cotton; ships that could have taken from 1600 to 2000 bales of screw'd, were content to take 1200 or 1000 bales, which is the case with the ship Cere of 300 tons; she has 420 bales unscrew'd cotton, whereas, had it been screw'd, she would have taken 700."

NEW-YORK, October 15.

By the ship Fame, captain Law in 37 days from Bristol, our English papers are extended to the 30th August. They contain nothing of greater political importance than the following articles:— LONDON, Aug. 26.

We learn from a source to which we have no all occasions looked up with a confidence of respect and confidence, that government is highly displeased with the great variety of invectives, which have, particularly of late, been directed from the British Press against the consular system of Government in France—Official Letters (we suppose by Mr. Merry,) from Paris, reached his Majesty's Ministers, now in or near town, on Tuesday, stating what measures the Police had been ordered to resort to, on a late occasion, with respect to the English papers. The dispatches were deservedly considered of the highest moment; and the following (we can nearly vouch for the very words) were the sentiments expressed on the occasion by an eminent Statesman.

"Where the licentiousness of the press begins there its liberty and boasted freedom must necessarily end!

"Scandalum Magnatum, which relates even to truths uttered against the great of our own nation, is severely punishable by the law of the land; a fortiori, indiscriminate abuse, levelled against a mighty Potentate, a neighbour, with whom we have just closed a pacific compact, calls aloud for national justice, without waiting for the tardy interference of the Ambassador of the Power that has been wantonly affailed and insulted. . . I am for preventing the recurrence (by energetic means) of barefaced and unjustifiable attacks on the system of government (be it what it may) which prevails in France; and I am of opinion that it would prove creditable to the nation at large, were his Majesty's Attorney General ordered to proceed, ex officio, against the Conductor, Printer, or publisher of any paper, printed within the United Kingdom, containing matter of a libellous tendency against the French or any other Government."

Our informant assures us (and we repeat that his assertions has never once led us into error) that Government has it in serious contemplation, to put a stop to the torrent of defamatory language which daily issues from the English press, and is directed against Bonaparte & his Colleagues.
We hope however, that as Englishmen, the King's Ministers will not, for the purpose of carrying their design, attempt to stretch the law beyond its natural and constitutional tone. Intemperance on this one part might arouse intemperance on the other, and God only knows where the contest would end. Lon. E. Post.

August 29.

The Hamburg mail, due on Wednesday, arrived yesterday. It states, on the authority of letters from Vienna, of the 11th inst. that the emperor, notwithstanding the repeated and urgent invitations of France, peremptorily refuses his accession to the convention concluded at Paris, between France, Russia and Prussia, on the subject of indemnities. This circumstance is assigned as the reason why Austria is not mentioned, or its interest consulted, in the project which has been delivered by France and Russia.

The breach between Austria and Prussia is rapidly extending, and the interest which the latter takes in favor of the elector of Bavaria is calculated to increase it.

August 30.

We have received Paris Journals to the 27th inst. They are silent respecting the prohibition issued against the reading of English Newspapers. The fact, however, is certain, orders having been received by many in the habit of sending them over, to discontinue them till further notice.— One would think this sufficient to quiet the apprehensions of those who entertain fears respecting fair discussion; and yet we find in one of the journals a furious tirade against the English papers. It is supposed to be from the pen of Barrere, and contains very gross and unfounded charges of corruption. How different the conduct of the journalists of the two countries; we should rather say how different the governments! Here we reprint the worst things they can invent against us; there they dare not even read our plain statement of facts.

too much of the trade by ex-

French produce for the West-Indies had risen very much; brandy and wine was very high; the harvest for grain and fruit was very good, wines it was expected would be plenty; every encouragement given to the commerce of that country; every thing that could swim was fitted out for the West-Indies; additional duties laid upon goods imported in foreign bottoms.
West-India produce very low owing to large quantities arriving every day from their colonies; no sale for American vessels; flour 10 to 12 dolls. beef, 13 to 14.

By Capt. Langdon, arrived at Boston, from Martinico, which place he left the 16th Sept. we learn, that the French troops had arrived there ten days previous to his sailing.

FRANKFORT, September 29.

We learn from the country, that since Thursday last until yesterday, severe white frosts have been experienced, which have materially injured the crops of fodder and cotton. We have not heard from the southern parts of the state, but we much fear that the beautiful fields of cotton which there promised an ample recompense to the laborer, have shared the same fate of those in this neighborhood, and the fair prospects of the cultivator entirely blasted.

Alexandria Advertiser.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 18.

Extract of a letter from Messrs. Collew, freres, Carmichael & Co. at Havre, to their correspondents in this city, dated July 23.

"A law has just passed for establishing an entrepot for colonial produce in certain ports of this country, (and Havre is one of them) which appears to be a measure of such general interest to the commercial world, that we presume the enclosed copy of it, published here this day, will not be unacceptable to you."

Principal CLAUSES of the Law respecting TOBACCO.

"Foreign tobacco cannot be introduced by land under penalty of confiscation as well as of the horses and carriages employed in transporting it.

It can only be imported by sea, in vessels of 100 tons and upwards, and into the ports of Ostend, Dunkirk, Havre, Dieppe, Morlaix, St. Maloes, L'Orient, Nantz, Rochelle, Bordeaux, Certe and Marseilles, under pain of confiscation of the merchandize as well as of the vessel.

The importation of foreign tobacco on the north and east frontier can only be made by one of the towns of Cologne, Mayence, and Stralsbourg, under the same penalties as in the preceding articles.

Foreign tobacco shall continue to pay 33s. in foreign ships and 22 s. in French ships.

The tobacco may remain in entrepot during 18 months as before, without payment of duty.

No reduction in duties to be allowed on account of damage; but the damage, if any, is to be ascertained and the proprietors may abstract the parts damaged to be burnt or exported, but without separating the stalk from the leaf.

Tobacco in leaf shall not be allowed within 4 leagues of the coasts or frontiers, without an acquit-a-caution on pain of confiscation, as well as of the vehicle of transportation and double the duty besides.

The duty of 20 s. shall be established upon every species of fabricated tobacco, and that duty upon foreign shall be paid upon the leaf tobacco, when taken out of the entrepot. There are also regulations for the manufactories, and for the officers appointed to superintend them, and for the tobacco of the growth of France.

From the NEW-YORK GAZETTE.

EXTRACTS from "Principles of Nature," published by Elihu Palmer, president of the Theistical Society in New York.
No. I.

Much having been said about the society of infidels, and its existence ascertained beyond all controversy, the following extracts are given, in order that the principles and views of said society may be more general known. The extracts are not made, and cannot be read by any christian, without horror. The second edition of the work is used.

"The Christian world worships three infinite Gods, and one omniscient and omnipotent Devil. This last being is rather an object of terror and frightful apprehension, than that of worship & adoration; but as he is clothed with nearly all the attributes which this system of religion has ascribed to its divinity, or divinities, and as the latter is also clothed with awful qualities of worth and vengeance, it would be difficult to offer any good reason why the one should be entitled in the view of the Christian, to more homage than the other, since between them there is so striking a resemblance of characters."

p. 29, 30.
"The last resort of the believer, must be the authority and command of his majesty, who has kindly interfered for the purpose of rendering divine and holy, a book, whose indecency and immorality shocks all common sense and common honesty." p. 41. 42.

"This story of the virgin and the ghost, to say no more of it, does not wear the appearance of much religion, and it would not, it is presumed be difficult in any age or country, to find a sufficient number of men, who would pretend to be ghosts, if by such pretensions they could obtain similar favors, especially with the consoling reflection superadded, of becoming the progenitors of the pretended savior of a wretched and apostate world. How absurd and contradictory are the principles and doctrines of this religion? In vain do its advocates attempt to cover this transaction with the machinery of ghosts and supernatural agents. The simple truth is, that their pretended savior is nothing more than an illegitimate Jew, and that their hopes of salvation through him, rest on no better foundation than that of fornication or adultery." p. 45. 46.

This last quotation is of so blasphemous a nature, that I felt indisposed to proceed father at present. It aggravates the feelings to know that Mr. Palmer "was once a public speaker in the cause of Christianity." In this city he once preached the gospel of our blessed Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, whose name before his infidel hearers, and all the world, he now so hor-ribly blasphemes. This is the man who is chosen at the head of a deistical and political club, who have been unwearied in their attempts to destroy the Christian religion and all wholesome government.

FIDELIS.

[This is the work which was sent by Mr. Livingston, with an affectionate address to Tom Paine at Paris. Paine in return compliments the Infidel Society from which it was sent, urges them to persevere, and gives the cheering promise that he would soon be over to America himself to aid their exertions. What Mr. Jefferson's letter to the society contained, is now known, but if an opinion may be formed from his eulogium upon the writings of another member, it was no less flattering than Paine's. Certain it is that a copy of the book from which the above extracts are made, was also sent to him with an address from the society, and that the club were honored with a letter from the philosopher. Such men must the good Mr. Watts have had in view when he sung.

On slippy rocks I see them stand, And fiery billows roll below.]

FROM MARTINIQUE.

A letter to a gentleman in Philadelphia, from his correspondent at Martinique, dated Sept. 12, informs, that on that day, a French fleet consisting of two ships of the line, one frigate, one brig, and two schooners, having on board 2000 troops, arrived at Port Royal. The island was to surrender on the day following.

The brig Hannah of this port, arrived at Martinique, in a passage of 29 days.— The schooner Thetis in 36, and brig West Point, in 54 days, both from hence.

Extract of a letter, dated at Point Petre, Sept. 15, 1802, to a gentleman at Brunswick.

The Spaniards have concluded a peace with the refractory Indians, who have drove Bowles and all his white adherents out of the nation. My friend Kin-and went down with Mr. Forister, and took a number of the Creek chiefs and warriors, and obliged the Mackefoohes to drive off Bowles, make peace, and deliver up the prisoners and negroes—Fatio has got most of his negroes home already.

[COPY.]

Of a letter from Madrid, 15th Aug. 1802.

SIR,
On the 11th inst. the plenipotentiaries of the United States and Spain, signed a convention for the appointment of commissioners who are to form a board, and sit at Madrid, for the indemnification of those who have sustained losses, damages, or injuries in consequence of the excesses of individuals of either nation, during the late war, contrary to the existing treaty or law of nations. The convention to have no force or effect until it be ratified by the contracting parties. I am, sir, &c.

Mode of applying manure in Switzerland.

All the animal and vegetable matter, such as the cleanings of stables, warehouses, &c. that can be collected from different parts of a farm, are brought together in the foldyard. They are there heaped one upon another and kept constantly wet, the different parts being from time to time exposed to the air, till the whole mass is decomposed. The water flowing from it is then transported to the field; either in machines similar to our water carts, or in tubs, where it is sprinkled over the land? and its effects are said to be much more rapid, and equally permanent, with the common method of applying manure.

Water in the above state is charged with the different kinds of gasses, so necessary for vegetation; and what is of more importance still, with carbonic matter, either in a state of solution or sub-tile mixture, nicely adapted, therefore, to be taken up by the tender vegetable fibre; and to this, I suppose, its superior fertilizing quality must be owing, since carbon can produce no beneficial effects, but in as much as it is soluble in water.
